

Assistant Corporate Counsel (Regulatory) (ZA2131)

About The Position

Ameren Services Company is seeking an experienced regulatory attorney to assist Ameren regulated subsidiaries in matters concerning state regulation in Illinois. This position requires the ability to work relatively independently and to offer competent counsel in matters concerning state utility regulation. The person selected will join the "Illinois Regulatory Team" – a team that works together to address a high volume of legal and regulatory matters in the state of Illinois, and is dedicated to achieving successful resolutions to these matters.

Key responsibilities include:

- Represent Ameren subsidiaries in administrative dockets before the Illinois Commerce Commission ("ICC");
- Support internal clients concerning rate cases pending before the ICC;
- Counsel clients concerning legal matters affecting state regulated utility operations in Illinois;
- Supervise and manage outside consultants and attorneys;
- Represent Ameren subsidiaries in negotiated proceedings;
- Represent Ameren subsidiaries in matters concerning local government ordinances and regulations; and
- Support Ameren subsidiaries in assessing legal risks concerning proposed or pending legislation or regulations

Qualifications

Juris Doctorate Degree (J.D.) from an accredited law school required. Two or more years of experience in litigation or state utility regulatory advocacy in private practice, corporate legal department or related government agency required. Experience related to government and administrative matters is preferred. Candidate must be admitted to practice in a U.S. jurisdiction. Licensure in Illinois and Missouri preferred, and successful candidate will be required to hold a general license to practice in both states, or alternatively, obtain an in-house certificate authorizing practice on behalf of Ameren and its subsidiaries.

In addition to the above qualifications, the successful candidate will demonstrate:

- Strong organizational, time management, oral advocacy and written communication skills.
- The Candidate must be proficient and possess diligence to advance matters including docketed proceedings independently, as well as strong interpersonal skills to work effectively in a diverse team.
- Experience in handling accounting matters related to regulation and rates, rate cases generally, rate design matters, energy efficiency dockets, and/or transmission siting proceedings would be valued.
- The Candidate should demonstrate flexibility and organizational skills to manage numerous and sometimes competing responsibilities of varying urgency and criticality within a fast-paced work environment.
- The ability to evaluate risk from a legal and business perspective.
- Proficiency in legal research, Lexis or Westlaw and other applicable research services.

Additional Information

Ameren's selection process includes a series of interviews and may include a leadership assessment process. Specific details will be provided to qualified candidates.

*Note: Key responsibilities reflect the essence of the position. Additional tasks or projects may be assigned to or removed from this role based on business needs or incumbent skills and abilities. Note that changes to minimum qualifications should be reviewed with and approved at the Officer level.
